

Valley Interfaith Project
Ryle Faith Leaders Public Policy Institute

Participation Covenant

The Ryle Faith Leaders Public Policy Institute is an opportunity for selected faith leaders from throughout Arizona to learn about and actively engage issues affecting the common good and our collective well-being.

Valley Interfaith Project is convening this eight-session seminar, drawing on the expertise of respected community leaders and accomplished thinkers to bring their experience to bear on the challenges facing our state.

To gain maximum benefit of the seminar, we ask that participants prioritize the seminar by agreeing to the following guidelines:

- Attend all eight sessions. Regular participation builds collective trust and understanding with fellow participants. We realize that emergencies and unavoidable conflicts may occur. Please notify seminar conveners when these arise.
- Arrange to arrive on time to every session, to be respectful of our mutual schedules.
- RSVP when asked. Please respond as soon as you can when you receive invitations for events or meetings associated with the training
- Engage actively in each session with guest presenters, fellow participants, and seminar conveners. Keeping the “Video On” in Zoom allows that meaningful interaction to occur.
- Come prepared for discussion. We may request that participants do reading prior to certain seminars.

A lay leader or staff member who I would like to invite (optional):

I have read the above and agree to these guidelines.
